

Pulled Dutch Braid

So braids are huge on the fashion scene now, and one of the most iconic is the classic Dutch braid. Everyone is doing it. But here's the thing: it's kind of difficult to do, especially if you're new to this braiding business. So we've taken the liberty of putting together some easy steps to make a faux Dutch braid, the Pulled Dutch Braid. We call it this, because there is no braiding involved.

Step 1: Using your forehead as a guide, section off the top part of your hair in line with the middle of your forehead, and tie it with a small elastic. Pin the ponytail to the top of your head (to keep it separate from the rest of the hair). Remember, all elastics must match the colour of your hair.

Step 2: Again, using your forehead as a guide, section off the top part of your hair in line with the area just above your eyebrows, and tie it with a small elastic, just below the first ponytail.

Step 3: Drop the pinned ponytail down over the second. Divide it into two equal parts and bring each part around the second ponytail. Clip up the second ponytail.

Step 4: Repeat steps 2 and 3, sectioning off lower and lower pieces of hair until you reach the end of your hair. Tie it off with an elastic band.

Step 5: If you want to make your braid thicker, simply tug gently on the tied up pieces of hair.

PRODUCTS YOU NEED

Dove Intensive Repair Shampoo

Dove Intensive Repair Express Treatment Conditioner

Dove Pure Care Dry Oil Nourishing Treatment

Salon Finish Firm Hold Hairspray

VIEW MORE TUTORIALS